While it is understood that Premier Lioyd George favored an almost un-Warsaw note announcing the Minak meeting, the British Minister was alsont alone in this. Even his own For-ign Office advisers called attention to the fact, attested in British reports Warsaw, that the Poles were penuinely desirous for peace and that the Bolaheviki alone were responsible for the delay in starting negotiations.

The helief held by the British mis-sion in Warsaw that the Bolsheviki had sion in Warsaw that the Bolsheviki had deliberately delayed the opening of negotiations in the hope of capturing Warsaw before they begun also was pressed upon the British Premier. One of his advisers predicted that if Warsaw was not captured by the Bolsheviki before next Wednesday, the Soylet would find further fault with the Poles.
